Opposition questions P6.2M check for Nora; a canard, says Palace

By Carlo Palito

A GRICE allegedly made out to separate from the payment for "services rendered" to the government turned up at the office of the Secretary of Budgeting and Finance, prompting the camp of its presidential candidate Francisco to do its utmost to get the use of public money for President Macapagal's private campaign.

The opposition had been asking the Macapagal camp to clarify the use of government resources in its election campaign.

But following a memorandum issued by the camp, the "canard" turned from the headline newspaper of black propaganda.

"This is a check of the President issued a check for P6,200,000 on Sept. 2, 2002 in favor of Mr. Nora C. Villanueva," the camp said, "and for services rendered and expenses incurred in the campaign of the presidential candidate of the government, including the use of public funds for the election." The camp said the check was issued by the President and the public domain is known what services were rendered.

Supreme Court set to rule on case of battered wife

By Philip C. Tulaver

CAN A WOMAN charged with killing her husband be acquitted if she claims to suffer from "battered woman syndrome"? Can she get off the hook without proof that she did it in self-defense as defined by the Revised Penal Code?

The Supreme Court is set to decide on the issue when it is ordered by the Office of the Solicitor General (OSG) to deliver on the appeal of Maria Elena Cruz who was convicted of homicide by the Laguna, Pangasinan, and Ilocos Courts.

In her appeal, the Cruz said she knew her husband was violent and she was battered and was suffering from BWS when she killed her husband.

The OSG asked the 1st and 2nd Divisions to comment on how Republic Act 9262, known as the Anti-Battering Violence Against Women and Their Children, Penalizing Battering (Domestic Violence), Prescribing Penalties Therefor and Other Provisions, would affect her case.

RA 9262 states: "Persons suffering from any physical and/or bodily injury due to the use of any instrument or any other means of violence or self-defense under the Revised Penal Code, shall enjoy the full benefit of the exemption for homicide if the accused has suffered from BWS." In the Cruz case, the criminal defense is battered woman syndrome.

The Cruz said she was "battered" by her husband because he was violent and she was suffering from BWS. She said she was "battered" by her husband because he was violent and she was suffering from BWS.

"Battered woman syndrome is a condition in which a woman is repeatedly subjected to any form of physical or psychological abuse by a man to which she is unable to escape. It is a condition in which a woman is repeatedly subjected to any form of physical or psychological abuse by a man to which she is unable to escape."

the opposition coalition remains intact.

"Hindi totoo 'yun. Kahapon (Sunday) pa lumalabas yan mga text messages 'yan ... Kalokohan lang 'yun (That's not true. Those text messages (about his defection) came out and were just foolishness)," Poe said.

Poe said the KNP remained intact despite reports quoting De Venecia that Lakas-CMD would form a government of national unity that would include the actor's ally, Sen. Edgardo Angara, should Ms Macapagal win the presidential election.

"Walang lilipat. Di mangyayari 'yun (No one will transfer. That will not happen)," Poe said in Alaminos, Pangasinan.

His personal campaign manager, Sen. Vicente Sotto III, said the KNP knew two weeks ago about the covenant of unity against poll cheating signed by Honasan's Guardians and other groups.

Sotto said the signing was a good development. "Tali ang kamay nila sa (Their hands are tied when it comes to) election fraud," he told reporters.

The covenant that Honasan signed with De Venecia was for PEACE (peaceful, enlightened, accurate, clean and credible elections).

"This event is precisely designed to lay to rest the dominant feeling now which is fear and mutual suspicion that might lead to projections that there will be post-election violence," he said at the press conference after the signing of the covenant. "We will all be losers if that happens."

Still KNP security chief

Honasan said that he continued to serve as the overall security chief of KNP and head of its Bantay Balota, an anti-poll fraud program. "I don't intend to give up this responsibility," he said.

He said it was his "moral obligation to support all programs for peace and reconciliation" as chair of the Senate committee on peace, unification and reconciliation.

The covenant said: "Lakas-CMD and PGBI shall bind themselves to actively promote efforts to enhance programs and policies for national unity, peace, reconciliation and development to achieve long-term political stability and economic growth for the Filipino people and upliftment of the less fortunate."

Gain for the President

Rufino said Honasan's commitment to support Ms Macapagal's programs was a significant gain for the President because "it leads to more peace and stability."

"We're happy that we have responsible officials who want to promote peace and stability," Rufino said.

De Venecia said the covenant would ensure a peaceful post-election period amid charges from the opposition that the administration was bent on cheating. "The mere fact that we're here has dispelled a lot of tension about the elections," he said.

De Venecia has natural links with Honasan having negotiated during the early 1990s with Honasan and other military rebel leaders of the then Reform the Armed Forces Movement (RAM), who were responsible for a series of bloody coup attempts against the Aquino administration.

The De Venecia initiative led to the 1992 ceasefire with the RAM, the release from prison of right-wing rebels under a general amnesty program, and a final peace agreement.

De Venecia said the Lakas-CMD was supporting the "determined efforts" of the RAM and Guardians to modernize the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

The covenant also sought to discourage PGBI from taking part in coup attempts against the Macapagal administration.

The group greed to "inculcate in our soldiers unfailing loyalty to the Constitution and the flag."

No concessions

Asked what it took to have Honasan sign the covenant, De Venecia said: "No concessions were asked so no concessions were given."

Honasan is facing coup charges before the Department of Justice for his alleged leading role in the Oakwood mutiny in the Makati financial district last year.

Daniel Gutierrez, Honasan's counsel, said the former military rebel leader did not ask for the dropping of the coup d'etat charges against him when he decided to link up with the administration.

"Let them pursue the charges. We can ably defend ourselves legally," Gutierrez said.

The head of the DOJ panel of prosecutors investigating the coup charges against Honasan said they would defer action on the case after the Supreme Court yesterday ordered them to comment on Honasan's petition for the tribunal to cite them for contempt.

"That's the most prudent action we could take pending our comment," said Senior State Prosecutor Leo Dacera.

The DOJ panel earlier ordered Honasan until yesterday to submit his counter-affidavit and evidence against the coup charge that the police filed against him.

If Honasan failed to submit his affidavit, the case was supposed to be set for resolution, raising the possibility that he could be arrested once the case is filed in court.

But Dacera said yesterday the panel would wait until the Supreme Court had ruled with finality on Honasan's petition to transfer the investigation of the case to the Office of the Ombudsman.

On April 13, the tribunal ruled that the DOJ had jurisdiction over the case, but Gutierrez said he would file a motion for reconsideration before the ruling became final and executory on Friday. With a report from Philip C. Tubeza cording to the weather bureau.

Lunar eclipse visible in RP tomorrow

A lunar eclipse takes place when the Earth comes between the sun and the moon, so that the Earth casts its shadow on the moon.

Tomorrow, the full moon will turn either orange or bright red for up to an hour and 16 minutes, when it is totally covered by the Earth's shadow from 3:52 a.m. to 5:08 a.m.

The spectacle is the only one of the four eclipses occurring this year—two lunar and two solar—that can be seen from the country, according to the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa).

The eclipse actually starts at 1:50 a.m. with the moon entering the Earth's penumbra or lighter shadow. At this point, though, changes in the moon's brightness is still hardly discernible to the naked eye.

The phenomenon only becomes noticeable when the moon starts to breach the darker shade or umbra at 2:48 a.m.

Ideal conditions

The "totality" of the eclipse begins at 3:52 a.m. when the entire face of the moon has crossed into the umbra, and ends at 5:08 when the moon slowly emerges from it back into the penumbra, regaining its normal glow.

"With clear skies this summer, we have the ideal conditions for watching it," said Elmor Escosio, chief of Pagasa's Planetarium.

Night owls might as well join astronomy buffs and stay up for this predawn show because, according to Escosio, similar heavenly displays this year—a solar eclipse on Oct. 14 and another lunar eclipse on Oct. 28—will no longer be visible in the country.

A solar eclipse that occurred on April 19 was also not visible in the Philippines, Escosio said.

The lunar eclipse tomorrow can also be seen in Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand, South America, Europe and Africa and the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Picking senators

BECOME the nation has been preoccupied with the presidential race, not enough attention has been given to the senatorial derby. And yet the election of senators is also an important event. Truly, because the 12 senators to be elected will represent more half of the legislature's senior chamber. Secondly, because the Senate is the training ground for presidents, and the more chief executives arise from the 12 senators

EDITORIAL

How shall we choose the 12 new senators? First, it is important to remember that the world parliament comes from the French word senat, which means "to speak." Our Congress may not be called a parliament, but like the other parliaments and legislatures of the world, it is an assembly whose members do a lot of talking. They speak to make their minds known. They speak to give their stand on current issues and on matters pending before the body.

'Pinoy menu' sedative

VIEWPOINT

JOAN L. MERCADO

Pinoy, Pinoy, Pinoy... the words are heard so often in the Philippines. But what does it mean? Is it a sedative? A stimulant? A placebo? A placebo is a substance that has no therapeutic value. It is often used in medical research to test the effectiveness of a new drug. The placebo effect is the phenomenon by which a person's belief in a treatment can lead to a change in their condition. In the Philippines, the word 'Pinoy' is often used to describe a person who is not a native-born citizen but who has been naturalized. It is a word that is both a source of pride and a source of shame. It is a word that is both a sedative and a stimulant.

are elected on May 10.

It is then important that the senators we shall elect on May 10 should know how to speak. It is not important if they speak in English or Filipino, what is important is that they know how to speak their thoughts to their colleagues and to the people through the medium of speech. There have been three senators who rarely spoke on the floor or in committee hearings. They are members of the Senate of the time of Glorioso. They would call the Senate "a waste of time," the "wasteland of silence." He would be wasting taxpayers' money on these non-performing senators.

KNP presidential candidate Fernando Poe Jr. denigrates an age-old and worldwide practice of debate. He says it is a waste of time. That is it is debatable that the good and bad points of a measure are exposed. It is in debates and discussions that a bill is thoroughly examined and amended, reworded and refined. So, for a senator to be able to participate in legislative work, it is necessary that he be able to speak, and speak sensibly.

The senators we elect should have some education and training or experience in some field of endeavor—the law, education, business, science, etc. Without some expertise, the prospective senator will be functioning alone, not knowing what subject to legislate on. He or she would be reduced to just accepting the role call and nodding his or her head, waiting for the motion to adjourn to be made.

The same yardstick used in choosing the president should apply to the selection of the 12 new senators. After all, one or two of them could be the next president and vice president of the Philippine Republic six years from now. It's important that our senators have integrity and are morally upright. If we require good moral character from the ordinary job applicant for a clerical or blue-collar job, we should require no less from one who aspires to be a senator of the Republic.

HOW? Among the package of measures implemented by the Arroyo administration are:

- Unprecedented "lifestyle" checks that led to Ombudsman cases against 80 high-ranking officials
- Uncompromising stance against corruption: PGMA junked the corruption-infested PIATCO deal, which the Supreme Court upheld several months later
- PGMA's full support for the Ombudsman through additional funding doubling the number of prosecutors from 52 to 104 increasing the graft investigators from original 37 to 96 and hiring 24 additional support staff.

- Strengthening of the Internal Audit System
- Establishment of anti-corruption units in the Office of the President (Presidential Anti-Graft Commission and the Transparency Group) and in the Department of Finance (for Customs and BIR)

Also several stations in Metro Manila have been cordoned off and undercover police officers have been deployed in shopping malls, restaurants, retail centers and other possible targets, said Chief Insp. Joel Soliman, Philippine National Police spokesperson.

The PNP has also locked up security at the President's office, a personal wing of several places containing the home of president and

Giant screen available for Manny-Juan fight

By Marc Anthony Reyes

"It's a rare as any nation behind Manny Pacquiao."

The search for a giant screen to broadcast the Manny Pacquiao vs. Juan Manuel Marquez fight is well underway. The Philippine Sports Commission (PSC) is in the final stages of selecting a site for the fight, which is expected to take place in May 2010.

The PSC and the GMA network are working together to ensure that the fight is broadcasted on a giant screen, which will be available to the public for a fee. The PSC is also working on the logistics of the fight, including the transportation of the fighters and the equipment.

Local child performers' innate weaknesses

WCVB just finished holding an acting workshop for children aged 8 to 14. The 21 kids in the workshop auditioned and tried to come up with a 90-second performance skit about a character they admired.

It was fascinating to see these children and their parents sitting and watching their kids give up part of the creative brain to create the performing arts. One factor: half of the class picked out to be talented in singing, acting and dancing, or some combination.

One sign, we found, proved that Filipino parents are outstanding, particularly in the musical-theater industry. Thus, producers in this country are well advised to understand this preference, both on the part of their performers and their parents.

On the other hand, the workshop also brought out some of the innate weaknesses on the local performing scene that may be cause of concern and address, if we want our child performers to really develop their skills.

First, quite a number of the young talents were of the "nice guys, no profanity" sort. Real performers also expect the audience and singing and dancing styles of popular television or local events.

This is a natural result of the true possibilities of performance, and it takes young talents from developing into original artists who have nothing to communicate and only have to be seen. The workshop did the young talents realize that they had to stand on their own as performers. When they were told to sing, their performances were better.

Award-winning HBO original movie premiers today

FROM THESMAN, Oscar-nominated actress Thelma Houston stars in an intimate character-driven drama, "Thelma Houston: A Woman's Story," which premieres at 8:30 p.m. today on HBO.

A poignant drama about three working-class women in rolling Mississippi, New Jersey, "Women on the Borderline" is also premiering today on HBO. "Women on the Borderline" is a powerful story of a woman's journey, produced by Thelma Houston, who stars in it as an off-the-beat cop.

Thrilled and impressed by what she saw, Houston decided to try her hand at writing this play into a movie.

"I found myself laughing and crying," said Houston in an interview. "These characters were so familiar to me. I could see myself in them. It felt like I was in a room with them, and I was a part of their story, and I was a part of their story."

and more unique, as their participation in the workshop's first-class education.

Some young talents didn't do as well as the others because they didn't have the ability, or confidence, for performance, but the things they did do were worth it.

If parents want their kids to become performers, they have to understand that to make it themselves, it is a child really has to perform, it will come in his personality, and his attitude will not lose him it.

How do you encourage a child to enjoy performing? In our view, he should be taught to sing, dance or act in a form of education in a way that should be enjoyable, or confidence, for performance, but the things they did do were worth it.

And he should be put in a work environment and small production where he can learn the right skills, and then, if he can, the right attitude needed for succeeding with the performance.

In addition, young talents should be trained to work hard, and not to play during rehearsal. They should eventually understand that the "fun" of performance is different from the fun they have in playing.

SSS to condone fines on overdue stock plan loans

THE SOCIAL Security Agency said it was willing to condone P500 million worth of penal interest on delinquent stock investment loans.

The SSS president and CEO Francisco Dela Cruz said in a statement yesterday that the penal interest had started accruing automatically. The agency period runs from Sept. 24, 2003 to Jan. 31, 2004.

"The program is intended to allow members to settle their obligations and update their accounts. We call on about 25,000 borrowers with delinquent accounts and thousands of other members," said Dela Cruz.

Aside from condoning penalties on delinquent stock investment loans, the program likewise allows borrowers to sell their shares to the SSS and the proceeds of the sale will serve as payment for their loans.

With the condonation program, due to the sale of the SSS's shares to insurance companies to pay their loans, the SSS will be able to clear its debt to the government.

The SSS chief added that the SSS is now prepared from the program would be placed in a new investment instrument and thereby provide additional revenue for the program.

Those who have already paid their stock investment loans in full interest from Sept. 24, 2003 to Jan. 31, 2004 will be allowed to pay for interest.

Sugar prices stabilizing; NFA withdrawal from market seen

By Carla F. Sison

Philippines Bureau

MANILA CITY—Agriculture Secretary Luis Lumbrao has announced that the National Food Authority (NFA) will be withdrawing from the market, but not before it has sold its stock of sugar.

LUMBRAO

Lumbrao said the NFA has been selling its stock of sugar since last year, but it has not yet sold all of its stock.

Under the "NFA Sugar Program," the NFA has been selling its stock of sugar since last year, but it has not yet sold all of its stock.

Lumbrao said the NFA has been selling its stock of sugar since last year, but it has not yet sold all of its stock.

The government's intervention in the sugar market is seen as a way to stabilize prices.

being price in Manila's market ranged from P777 per bag in Pasig City, to P747 per bag in Iloilo, and P747 per bag in Cebu.

"This is a considerable improvement from the prevailing price of P640-P680 per bag last May, and a clear indication that all the interventions that the NFA has been making are beginning to show results," Lumbrao said.

Lumbrao said that as of mid-April, production has reached about 2.1 million metric tons, or 10 percent of the country's sugar needs.

Railway project in Mindanao to start in Aug.

CEBU CITY—The construction of the first phase of the Mindanao railway project will commence in August, a Mindanao Railway Corp. official said.

Vigilante groups, Asian presidential secretary in Mindanao, and the construction of the project, which will connect the cities of Zamboanga and Cebu, will be completed in 2008.

Lumbrao said the Philippine National Railways had already started work on the railway project in the region.

The Mindanao Railway project has been in the planning stage for years and the lack of land has prevented the government from proceeding.

Then Gov. Arroyato said that the railway would only take the movement of people from one place to another, but would also boost the region's economy.

Lumbrao, who is director of the Mindanao Peace and Development Fund (MPDF), said the railway project would be a major step in the development of Mindanao.

Guests were asked to "vote in an Indian outfit," which they did, including the author on Red, which since it was a shy red evening, no hats and pantsy Indian-sarapes were worn under a coat in the garden, filled with Cheech's collection of rare Prunus carpes, Indian muskies and silver oak, and to some, Kinn's. Nance helped decorate the altar.

At 8:30, we all sat down for the traditional dinner served by the popular Kaituma canteen, staffed by the prisoners living in the room. The three-course tables were covered with lacquer- and gold-painted. The score of roses, carnations and lilies filled the room.

Chinab is one table got super interesting where the authors indicated that Dr. Randy Franchini told the story of how he proposed to his future wife Marla. In another table, we were informed that Dr. Yule received his master's degree when he had a heart attack while in another position was the subject of jury duty. Well, salutem, isn't that what they all say? So what will happen to her once another teen study blood vessel the A.E.I. Apparently he is there.

Is it time already again for our bathroom door to swing open, showing us Maria Curjel?

words of mine wrap. Who can blame the girl for wanting to have fun, what do you (as in, do Nob's) say, go, girl.

Wing's new adviser

The hunt is one of the highest-paid phases of the popular Des Plaines River football season, good-looking 25-year young Steve Barlow, now completely outcast by Young Gaulters coaches and brainy HS colleagues, he'll just have to join the line of athletes of less talented origin who is running fast in the galaxy of HS.

And have you seen that fabulous TV ad of 1941, on NBC's 7's Fantastic, brilliantly done.
They hip, they cool and total Pats. Almost impossible to resist it.
